Biography

Born and educated in the Netherlands, Caroline qualified as an Architect from the Technical University of Delft, and worked freelance in the profession for several years, interspersed with periods of solo travel in Africa, Asia and South America.

Caroline moved to the UK in her late thirties, via three years in the Falkland Islands. After a decade in the Scottish Highlands, she now lives in Shropshire, just on the English side of the border with Wales.

She has always had a passion for creating beautiful things, and has worked as an artist in most media. For the last 10 years she has followed a career in ceramic sculpture and has not looked back.

She creates organic sculptures and makes elegant tableware in various sumptuous colours. She loves experimenting and pushing the colour and texture boundaries.

Caroline takes her inspiration from her own inner life, which is expressed through the colours, shapes, change and growth of the natural world.

Through her ceramics she likes to show the beauty she sees in nature and daily things.

She is currently exploring how randomness can create beautiful patterns.
