Biography

I am a self-taught artist specialising in painting on silk, using a variety of techniques combined with mixed media. I am always finding new ways to explore the use of bright colour, interesting texture and making the most of the special properties of silk. I use salt, gutta, wax, stitch and PVA to add interest and surprising effects.

I am now based in Shropshire but have taught people of all ages and abilities, worked in health care settings and sold my work around the UK and beyond due to my husband's former RAF career. I love to enthuse and encourage people to explore creativity, particularly for therapeutic purposes. I have also conducted many large-scale community art projects with adults and children. I travel to various groups around Shropshire and Cheshire to demonstrate and give talks about my travels and artistic adventures.

My work ranges from greetings cards, scarves and cushion covers to both abstract and figurative paintings often inspired by the natural world.
